A little history on “Vernon d’Eon Lobster Plugs Ltd.”

Vernon d’Eon, once a lobster fisherman, sold his fishing boat, fishing gear and fishing rights to pursue a risky venture. Vernon bought out his good friend Benoit Pottier’s business to manufacture and sell millions of wooden lobster plugs (pegs). Over 80 million plugs were made and sold in 1978 to markets from New York to Newfoundland. Wooden lobster plugs were used on lobsters. It prevented them from pinching with their claws prior to today’s rubber bands.

In the fall of 1980 there was pressure to replace all wooden lobster plugs with rubber bands. Which are used today. It was then Vernon made the decision to diversify into fishing supplies as soon as possible or be out of a job because of this switch. In the summer of 1981 Vernon began selling long line ropes and from there the rest is history. Over the next 30 years, the company expanded to 8 fishing supply stores. He had 5 delivery trucks and employed over 40 people and shipped products worldwide.

In the fall of 2013, Vernon sold the entire fishing supply company to a father and son from Shippagan, New Brunswick. The company has since been renamed to Vernon d’Eon Fishing Supplies Ltd.
